

Twentieth Annual Report of the City of Rochester New Hampshire: For the Year Ending December 31st Nineteen Hundred and Eleven (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Twentieth Annual Report of the City of Rochester New Hampshire: For the Year Ending December 31st Nineteen Hundred and Eleven
Gentlemen of the City Council:
In taking oath here today as the mayor of Rochester for the ensuing year I am not unmindful of the responsibility that rests upon me. I thank the citizens for the expression of their confidence. I was elected upon no special platform, have made no promises, no pledges to be redeemed, yet I wish to take this opportunity to assure you and the people of Rochester that in so far as my power lies, I shall lend all my influence toward a clean, impartial and economical administration. Doubtless I shall make some mistakes, for none are infallible, but I intend to work unselfishly in behalf of the city's interest and to act only after obtaining all the facts and information that I am able to secure. I am sustained, gentlemen, by the fact that I am to share the responsibility of this administration with you. By accepting our several offices, we have made ourselves servants of the people and stand pledged to serve our city faithfully and honestly. We shall be unable to please all, for there are always some courting special privilege and legislation enacted for the good of the whole city will conflict with the private interests of a few. However, let us act with an eye to the future welfare of Rochester; then if there are those who are not in accord with our methods, they will at least respect our honest efforts. About the Publisher
