

What Matters Most

Even the most natural born leaders need to seek out advice from time to time. In fact, born or bred, the only thing that's certain is that when it comes to being a leader, it's often a lonely endeavor. When the time comes to determine whether to turn left or right, invest or divest, expand, contract or hold the fort, that decision falls solely on your shoulders, and your shoulders, alone. What Matters Most offers 12 lessons in leadership, culled from more than 20 years of entrepreneurship and working with America's top business leaders. These are things that matter most during times of change and growth, as well as at that moment when what comes out of the mouth of a leader will be what essentially makes or breaks your organization.
